4 THINGS TO KNOW

Fashion icon, socialite Gloria Vanderbilt dead at 95

Her death was confirmed by her son, CNN anchor Anderson Cooper.

Gloria Vanderbilt, the "poor little rich girl" who lived a life at the highest levels of fashion, society and wealth as an heir to one of the greatest family fortunes in U.S. history, died on Monday at the age of 95, her son, CNN correspondent Anderson Cooper, said.

Vanderbilt became a fashion icon in the 1970s with an eponymous line of tight-fitting blue jeans that bore her signature and trademark swan logo. They were a must-have for any woman with aspirations to style.

Vanderbilt wrote that as a girl she had considered becoming a nun, which would have been an incredible loss to the chroniclers of high society, celebrity and tumult. Instead of a nunnery, she went on to a life that could have provided story lines for dozens of soap operas, romance novels, Broadway musicals and tear-jerker movies.

Vanderbilt was born into wealth on Feb. 20, 1924, in New York City. She was the great-great-granddaughter of Cornelius Vanderbilt, the 19th-century railroad and shipping magnate who amassed one of the greatest fortunes of the time.

She was not yet 2 years old when her father, Reginald Claypoole Vanderbilt, died and she spent many of the following years living in Europe with her mother, Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt, on her trust fund, which was estimated at $2.5 million — the equivalent of at least $33 million today.

Gloria's aunt, Gertrude Vanderbilt Whitney, who founded the Whitney Museum of American Art, said Gloria's mother was misusing the trust fund on a free-wheeling lifestyle that included a female lover, and went to court. Whitney won custody of the child in an acrimonious, sensationalized case that eventually reached the U.S. Supreme Court.

The custody battle featured high-society character witnesses for both sides and testimony so sensitive that courtroom spectators were barred at times. The public closely followed the fate of "Little Gloria," who was protected at the time by 12 bodyguards.

Whitney eventually won custody of Gloria with one judge reproaching the girl's mother for living a lifestyle that was "calculated to destroy her health and neglectful of her moral, spiritual and mental education."

Vanderbilt said being taken from her mother started her on a lifelong quest for love and approval. This led her to marry a 32-year-old Hollywood agent, Pat DiCicco, when she was only 17. They divorced in 1945, when at the age of 21, Vanderbilt married conductor Leopold Stokowski, who was 63.

The couple had two sons and by the time they separated in 1955, Vanderbilt was being seen around New York with singer Frank Sinatra. After another divorce, Vanderbilt found herself in another custody fight — this time with Stokowski claiming that she was an unfit mother who spent too much time in psychotherapy.

From 1956 to 1963, Vanderbilt was married to Sidney Lumet, director of the acclaimed films "12 Angry Men," "Dog Day Afternoon," "Serpico" and "Network."

She was married to her fourth husband, writer Wyatt Cooper, until his death during heart surgery in 1978. They had two sons, Anderson and Carter.

In 1988, in the greatest tragedy of Vanderbilt's life, Carter, aged 23, killed himself by jumping from the family's 14th-floor apartment in New York, in spite of his mother's attempts to stop him.

She later wrote a memoir, "A Mother's Story," in which she reflected on her own painful upbringing and blamed Carter's suicide on psychosis brought on by an anti-asthma drug.

Vanderbilt called her son's death "the final loss, the fatal loss that stripped me bare," and said she did not think she could survive it.

In a 2012 television interview with her son Anderson, she said she thought about the tragedy every day and that she had considered jumping after her son.

"There was a moment when I thought I was going to jump after him but then I thought of you ... and it stopped me from doing that," she told Anderson. REUTERS

2 Megadeth's Mustaine diagnosed with throat cancer

Dave Mustaine, lead singer and guitarist for the heavy metal band Megadeth, has been diagnosed with throat cancer, forcing the band to cancel most of its 2019 shows, he said on Monday. Megadeth had been scheduled to perform this year in Milwaukee, Las Vegas, Buenos Aires and other cities in North and South America. "I'm working closely with my doctors, and we've mapped out a treatment plan which they feel has a 90 percent success rate," Mustaine said in a statement on Facebook. "Treatment has already begun." Megadeth, which was formed in 1983 and helped pioneer a style called thrash metal, reached the height of its popularity in the late 1980s and 1990s with albums such as "Countdown to Extinction" and "Youthanasia." Mustaine is known for his shredding, a fast style of rock lead guitar playing. REUTERS

3 US to add troops to Middle East as Iran plans breach

Iran said on Monday it would soon breach limits on how much enriched uranium it can stockpile under a 2015 agreement rejected by the United States, in a new point of contention with Washington which accused Tehran of "nuclear blackmail." Tensions between Iran and the U.S. are rising more than a year after President Donald Trump announced Washington was withdrawing from the nuclear deal. Fears of a confrontation have mounted since last Thursday, when two oil tankers in the Gulf were attacked. The U.S. military on Monday released images that it says show Iran's Revolutionary Guard removing an unexploded limpet mine from one of the tankers. Two U.S. officials speaking on condition of anonymity told Reuters on Monday it's preparing to send additional troops to the Middle East in response to mounting concerns over Iran. REUTERS

4 Egypt's Morsi dies after collapsing in court

Former Egyptian President Mohamed Morsi, the first democratically elected head of state in Egypt's modern history, died on Monday aged 67 after collapsing in a Cairo court while on trial on espionage charges, authorities said. Morsi, a top figure in the now-banned Muslim Brotherhood, had been in jail since being toppled by the military in 2013 after barely a year in power, following mass protests against his rule. His death is likely to pile up international pressure on the Egyptian government over its human rights record, especially conditions in prisons where thousands of Islamists and secular activists are held. The public prosecutor said he had collapsed in a defendant's cage in the courtroom shortly after addressing the court, and had been pronounced dead in hospital at 4:50 p.m. It said initial checks had shown no signs of recent injury on his body. Harvard revokes Parkland shooting survivor's acceptance over racial slurs

Kyle Kashuv immediately apologized to the university, but was still denied.

Harvard University has rescinded its admission offer to a survivor of the 2018 massacre at a Florida high school over his past use of racial slurs in an online document posted on Twitter, the student said on Monday.

The student, Kyle Kashuv, was a junior at Stoneman Douglas High School in Parkland, Florida, when a gunman opened fire in February 2018 and killed 17 students and staff. He became the target of online criticism last month after images of a shared study guide from more than a year ago circulated on Twitter, showing he wrote anti-black slurs.

"A few weeks ago, I was made aware of egregious and callous comments classmates and I made privately years ago — when I was 16 years old, months before the shooting — in an attempt to be as extreme and shocking as possible. I immediately apologized," Kashuv wrote on Twitter on Monday.

Kashuv said on Twitter that he had submitted a written apology to Harvard after the school contacted him asking him to explain the statements he made in the Google document. In response, he said, he received a letter from the admissions dean saying that his acceptance had been revoked.

"The Committee takes seriously the qualities of maturity and moral character. After careful consideration the Committee voted to rescind your admission to Harvard College," Harvard Admissions Dean William Fitzsimmons wrote to Kashuv on June 3, according to a copy of the letter that Kashuv posted on Twitter.

A representative for Harvard declined to comment on the matter, citing a policy to not comment publicly on the admission status of individual applicants.

Kashuv, who distinguished himself from other Parkland students as a gun-rights advocate after the school shooting, said on Twitter that he had requested to meet with the admissions committee to discuss the matter in person, but Harvard denied his request. REUTERS

Five people were killed in a Harlem apartment fire on May 8. FDNY

Relatives of Harlem fire victims sue city for $2.2B

The figure equals the amount the mayor agreed to pay to settle a housing project probe.

BECCA GLASSER-BAKER
Rebecca.Glasser@metro.us

Mourning relatives of a family that was killed in a Harlem apartment fire on May 8 are planning to sue New York City for a whopping $2.2 billion, according to reports.

The New York Post spoke with the family's lawyer, Evan Oshan, who is representing the only surviving daughter of the fire. "It's hard to put a dollar value on the loss of human life, but the $2.2 billion, we feel, is appropriate in light of the current situation," Oshan told the paper.

While the figure may seem high, Oshan said it's reasonable considering that $2.2 billion is the same amount Mayor Bill de Blasio's administration agreed to pay to settle a probe into the health and safety conditions of New York City's housing projects.

The New York Post also claimed that in addition to the $2.2 billion, Raven Reyes, the surviving daughter of victim Andrea Pollidore, who was the 45-year-old matriarch of the family, is seeking an additional $18 million for emotional damages. Reyes filed a wrongful death claim on May 14.

But she isn't the only one seeking damages. Natelle Pollidore, Andrea Pollidore's sister, wants compensation from her sister's estate for $37,773 to cover funeral costs, the Post reported.

FDNY said the blaze was caused by an unattended stove which was not detected, as Andrea Pollidore is believed to have removed the apartment's smoke alarm. The fire trapped her and her children in two rooms in the apartment. The other victims have been identified as Pollidore's stepson Matt Abdularaph, 33, Nakaira Pollidore, 11, Andre Pollidore, 8, Brooklyn Pollidore, 6, and Elijah Pollidore, 3.

Another surviving family member, Pollidore's 30-year-old son Hakeem, told the Post, "There are still a lot of red flags and questions we haven't had answered yet. ... We just want answers. That's what we need."

Doctors Urge Knee Pain Sufferers

"Don't Get ANY Surgery Until You SeeThis…"

After Years Of Intense Study, NYC Medical Clinic Finally Reveals It's Best "Treatment Formula" For Helping Knee Arthritis Sufferers... Especially When So Many Other Treatments Have Failed

NEW YORK CITY - If you are even remotely interested in discovering how the latest scientific discoveries can possibly help your knee pain... then this is going is be the most exciting information you ever read.

Here is why: Knee pain can not only be brutal... it's complex. In other words, it's not a simple, easy fix.

But I'm sure you already know that. Or you wouldn't be reading this.

That's the bad news.

Now for some good news...

Over the years, NYC Pain MD has treated countless knee pain sufferers. And in that time have been able to constantly improve.

And we have come up with a treatment formula that we have found works best and helps the most patients.

This formula has reduced or even eliminated the pain in many. Some were scheduled for knee replacement surgery and felt good enough to cancel their surgery.

It's amazing when patients who were once in excruciating pain... start feeling better. And start walking again. And playing golf. Or tennis. And finally getting their lives back.

Especially when they had gone to other doctors and tried so many other things.

So many had given up hope.

Sound familiar? If it does... check this out...

The Treatment Formula

While I can't give you the entire treatment formula here (there is not enough space and WAY too complicated) I can give you the basics. And more important... I can tell you what it might be able to do for YOU.

The first and most important part of the formula is: PATIENT SELECTION.

This means, NYC Pain MD has a detailed screening process to tell who is most likely to be helped by their treatments... and who is not.

If you qualify, you have the opportunity to move forward and experience the worldclass treatments that NYC Pain MD offers.

If you do not, NYC Pain MD will tell you what they think your best options are and help you find the right doctor for you.

NYC Pain MD "Treatment Formula" A protocol of advanced medical treatments that has already helped thousands.

If you qualify, NYC Pain MD offers some of the most advanced medical treatments available today all using the most advanced imaging technology including:

- Viscosupplementation (gel injections)
- Platelet Rich Plasma (PRP)
- Stem Cell Therapy (Lipogems)
- Genicular Knee Block
- And more.

Once again, there is not enough space to go into detail about all these procedures... but here are some things you MUST KNOW....

Viscosupplementation is where a doctor introduces a gel-like medicine directly into the joint space. This helps to lubricate the joints often relieving some, most or even all of your pain. Results can last for 6 months to several years.

Many have had these treatments without good results. However, NYC Pain MD feels this is because doctors often do these "gel injections" without advanced imaging to guide them. Research shows they will often miss the joint. If the joint is missed... it is impossible for the treatment to work.

NYC Pain MD has spared no expense and used advanced imaging to guide the injections assuring the medicine gets into the joint. We frequently get results when this treatment was a failure done elsewhere.

The second thing you must know is... our treatment plans are custom made for every patent. And we have all these treatments offered in the same place. Many times you will get the best results from multiple treatments. At NYC Pain MD your doctors will all be there and will all know each other and you and your case. They work together and give you the best treatments and care without you having to go anywhere else.

The ability to select the right patients and then have the potential to give them any or all of these treatments... with all the necessary medical technology... under one roof... has allowed NYC Pain MD to get better results than they thought possible.

Here's What You Should Do Next

If you suffer with knee pain... and any of this made sense to you... NYC Pain MD would like to offer you a No-cost screening. That screening is the first step in our "Treatment Formula."

You will get to see a doctor and ask any questions you have. Your doctor will take the first steps to see if you qualify for treatments and give you recommendations.

The best thing is... you will finally get direction. You will know what's going on and what is your best course of action… step-by-step. The treatments will be explained in detail and you will breathe a big sigh of relief finally knowing what's going on and what can or cannot be done.

There is so much we want to say to help you... but I'm out of space. Give us a call at 877-296-6310 and take the first step. That step is free without obligation.

‘Horror movie’ sex cult hid in ‘cookie-cutter’ New York suburb: Prosecutor

Cult leader Keith Raniere faces sex trafficking and child porn charges.

A reputed New York sex cult whose leader is accused of holding a woman hostage and having women branded with his initials carried out his crimes in an upstate subdivision that hid a “horror movie” reality, a federal prosecutor said on Monday.

Keith Raniere, 58, is on trial facing charges including racketeering, sex trafficking and child pornography. Prosecutors said he used his organization, Nxivm, which billed itself as a self-help group, to hide a secretive sorority where young women were blackmailed into sex and made to follow dangerously restrictive diets.

“The closed doors of these cookie-cutter houses may seem straight out of a horror movie, but for the defendant’s victims, it was all too real,” Assistant U.S. Attorney Moira Penza said as she showed pictures of the Clifton Park, New York, neighborhood where the cult operated.

Penza showed photos of houses where witnesses said Raniere sexually assaulted a female Nxivm member, where another woman was branded with his initials and a young woman, Daniela, was confined in a room for nearly two years under threat of being sent back to her native Mexico without her family.

Raniere, who could face life in prison if convicted, has pleaded not guilty. His defense attorneys will begin their closing arguments later Monday in a federal courthouse in New York’s Brooklyn borough.

Penza said Raniere recruited women into a secret society within Nxivm called DOS, an acronym for a Latin phrase, “Dominus Obsequious Sororium,” that roughly means “master of the obedient female companions.”

“Can there really be any doubt that DOS was anything other than a way for the defendant to get what he wanted from these women, including sex?” Penza asked the jury.

The six-week trial has featured testimony from several women who said Raniere victimized them, including Lauren Salzman, daughter of Nxivm co-founder Nancy Salzman and a longtime member of Raniere’s inner circle.

Lauren Salzman, who has pleaded guilty to related criminal charges, told jurors she became Raniere’s “slave,” and recruited other “slaves” for herself.

Raniere’s “slaves” were forced to hand over compromising information about themselves, often including nude photos and embarrassing confessions. They were told the material would be released if they disobeyed orders or tried to leave, according to Salzman and other witnesses.

Raniere declined to testify and his defense called no witnesses. His lawyer, Marc Agnifilo, has said women were never forced to act against their will.

Other members of Nxivm, which is pronounced “nexium,” were charged. They include Nancy Salzman, actress Allison Mack and Seagram liquor heiress Claire Bronfman. They have all pleaded guilty to crimes but have not yet been sentenced. REUTERS

Crackdown on MTA fare evasion and assaults to come

GETTY IMAGES

Gov. Andrew Cuomo announced Monday that he will be dispatching 500 NYPD officers to help combat fare evasion and other issues within the MTA public transportation system.

According to ABC, the deployment will consist of 200 more NYPD officers, 200 redeployed MTA officers and 100 Triborough Bridge and Tunnel Authority officers. The MTA said in a statement that it will also have 70 New York City Transit Eagle Team members.

The NYC Transit Eagle Team will be deployed to locations with the highest number of assaults on MTA workers and stations with the highest ridership rates. They will also receive additional training.

Cuomo said in a press release that "the MTA is still plagued by problems of public safety, attacks against transit workers and persistent fare evasion — issues that have only worsened in recent years." The governor said he hopes by creating these "historical reforms," he can help fix the transit system.

Additionally, Cuomo said, "This new multi-pronged effort will improve safety on the system overall, protect workers from these incomprehensible assaults, and deter fare evasion by deploying 500 new uniformed officers on our subways and buses."

A press release from the MTA also highlighted that the lost revenue from fare evasion was as high as $225 million in 2018. Data emerged Monday showing that from March 2018 to March 2019, total lost revenue reached $243 million.

Although fare evasion is a major concern for the transit agency, another problem plaguing the agency is attacks on its workers. Assaults reported by transit workers is up 15 percent in the past four years, according to the MTA. The public was reminded of this problem Monday as video emerged showing an irate man punching an MTA worker in the face. BECCA GLASSER-BAKER

As promised, Trump slashes aid to Central America over migrants

El Salvador, Guatemala and Honduras will be losing out on hundreds of millions of dollars.

Central American migrants. REUTERS

President Donald Trump's administration on Monday cut hundreds of millions of dollars in aid to El Salvador, Guatemala and Honduras, after Trump blasted the three countries because thousands of their citizens had sought asylum at the U.S. border with Mexico.

The plan will likely encounter stiff opposition in Congress.

Lawmakers, including some of Trump's fellow Republicans as well as Democrats, have chafed against the president's repeated decisions to disregard spending bills passed by Congress, some of which he has signed into law himself.

Lawmakers who opposed the plan said it was cruel to cut off aid to countries grappling with hunger and crime and that the move would be counterproductive because it would more likely increase the number of migrants than decrease it.

Congressional aides said the administration told them it would reallocate $370 million in aid to Central America that lawmakers had approved for fiscal 2018, and suspend an additional $180 million Congress had approved for fiscal 2017.

All of the money for those years has not yet been spent.

The administration said in March it would cut aid to the three countries after Trump expressed unhappiness with their immigration policies.

No funds will be provided until the administration is satisfied the countries are reducing the number of migrants reaching the U.S. border, State Department spokeswoman Morgan Ortagus told reporters.

"This is consistent with the president's direction and with the recognition that it is critical that there be sufficient political will in these countries to address the problem at its source," she said.

Without elaborating, she added: "Working with Congress, we will reprogram those funds to other priorities as appropriate."

A U.S. official, with knowledge of plans, said the administration would review the funding by April 2020. REUTERS

Demand Soars At NYC Medical Clinic For Promising Back Pain Treatment

Can This Medical Technology Possibly Eliminate Or Greatly Reduce Even The Most Severe Back Pain... Almost Instantly?

The Advanced Medical Treatment Every Back & Neck Pain Sufferer Needs To Know - No Matter How Bad The Pain Is Or How Many Other Treatments Have Failed

NYC Pain MD is a medical clinic with two locations in New York City that has made a name for itself by treating the worst cases of back or neck pain.

Here is what every back and neck pain sufferer who has failed to respond to other treatments and does not want surgery should know about one of the best treatment options available today for severe back and neck pain including when, why and where you should consider this treatment to get maximum results.

If you suffer with back, neck or nerve pain, you have probably already tried many treatments... especially countless pain medications.

Experienced doctors understand that even though pain medications such as anti-inflammatory pain pills are part of the recommended early treatment plan for back pain... they are rarely the answer.

In most cases they have minimal, short term results (if any) and have a laundry list of potential side effects. Some being serious and even life threatening.

Are there any better options?

Thankfully, advancements in science and technology come extremely fast. And now there is very good option to help relieve the pain.

An option that a lot of back and neck pain sufferers may have never heard of before.

Before we get into these treatments, please understand this...

NYC Pain MD is a REAL medical clinic that has treated the worst cases of back pain. Patients travel from all over to be treated at one of their clinics for all sorts of joint and muscle pain because they want the best medical treatments available.

What you are about to discover is a REAL medical treatment. Not some miracle cure you see on infomercials or on the internet.

Know this fact: There is no one treatment that will help every case of back pain. And we cannot guarantee this treatment will work for you. But this treatment has already helped countless back and neck pain sufferers who had given up hope. I bet many just like you.

What is this treatment? It's called...

Radiofrequency Neurotomy

"Radiofrequncy Neurotomy" is often referred to as RF for short.

RF is a procedure that is based on the theory that blocking the nerve supply to the painful area may alleviate pain and restore function.

There are many nerves around your spine and one of their jobs is to sense PAIN.

Radiofrequency waves are delivered to these nerves under advanced imaging to "block" the nerves.

Two procedures are performed. First, a test, diagnostic "Block" procedure is done to determine if the procedure is going to decrease pain and improve function.

If this first "test" procedure is successful, the Radio Frequency Neurotomy is scheduled and performed for longer term relief.

What Results Can You Expect?

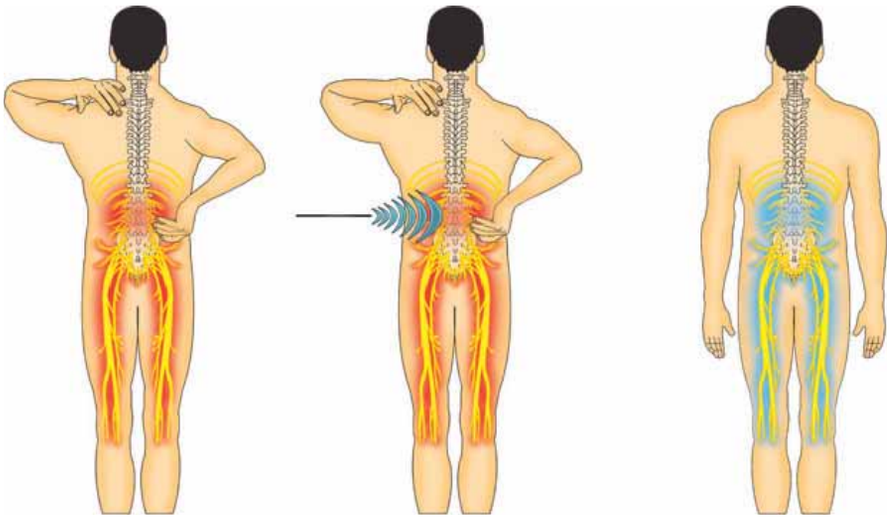
Like all real medical procedures... results vary for individual patients. No good and ethical doctor would guarantee any exact results for any procedure... that's just not how things work and it would be less than honest.

That's being said, it is not uncommon for patients to get complete, if not significant relief of their pain shortly after the treatment.

How Long Do The Results Last?

This procedure "blocks" the nerves pain signals... it does not destroy them. Therefore, the results are safe but not completely permanent. But, many patients get relief for 6 months… 12 months…. 18 months for some and some even longer. The great news is - another procedure can be safely preformed for more relief if necessary.

Advanced Treatment Uses Radio Frequencies To Relieve Serious Neck & Back Pain



Science rescues back & neck pain sufferers?: Radio Frequency Waves are used to block the nerve supply to the painful area and may alleviate pain and restore function to many.

While we cannot claim this is a complete "permanent cure" but... it can be a god-send for so many who were in constant pain.

Really... what would it be worth it to you could get out of pain for long enough so you could start enjoying your everyday life again?

Would it be worth it to be able to finally get a good nights sleep again?

How about being able to go for a simple walk or just do your basic daily chores without worrying about so much pain?

Is It Safe?

Yes. This procedure has been done countless times and continues to have an excellent safety record. It is minimally invasive and is not surgical.

Who Should Try This Treatment?

RF should be considered after other treatments, such as anti-inflammatory pain medication and physical therapy do not offer good enough results.

RF has also been found effective AFTER back surgery when patient's still feel pain.

The pain after a failed back surgery can be debilitating for some and this procedure may be the only thing that helps give you relief.

What To Do Next If You Are In Pain And The "X" Factor

Here is the "X" factor many do not consider that might be the difference between you getting the best possible treatment or not.

Many experts suggest choosing a medical clinic that offers all these treatments and has the proper, most advanced technology all under one roof without the need for a surgical center or hospital.

Major Savings In Time And Costs Of Care?

NYC Pain MD's method allows you to avoid expensive hospital or out patient surgi-center facility fees which often run 3 to 4 times the cost of the procedure itself. And you don't have to go through the huge stress and time consuming process of going all over the city to outside centers. All the NYC Pain MD treatments can be done in out in-office procedure suites saving you stress, time and dollars. NYC Pain MD believes this additional "X" factor is one of the reasons so many back pain sufferers travel from all over to be treated at one of their advanced medical clinics.

Your Invitation

NYC Pain MD offers a limited number of complimentary back pain treatment screenings every month. These screenings are a way for back pain sufferers to get some of their questions answered and see if they are a candidate for one of the cutting-edge treatments offered at NYC Pain MD. If you would like a complimentary screening, just call 877-907-2934 and tell the scheduling expert who answers the phone, "I would like a complimentary back pain screening."

The screenings fill up fast every month. If you do not call in time to get one this month, the expert will schedule you for next month.

This screening is no cost and no obligation.

Many of the treatments offered are covered by many insurance plans and traditional medicare.

Call 877-907-2934 for your free screening and find out if you can get out of pain today.

Raptors' NBA victory parade marred by shooting

Two people were seriously hurt at the parade attended by Drake and PM Justin Trudeau.

Canadian Prime Minister Justin Trudeau and some 2 million other fans cheered the NBA champion Toronto Raptors on Monday in a victory celebration that united the nation, but the party was marred by a shooting that seriously wounded two people.

Five double-decker buses that carried the players and their families moved along the parade route at a snail's pace due to the massive crowd, as players including Kawhi Leonard, who was named most valuable player of the NBA Finals, sprayed champagne on the fans.

The Canadian musician Drake, one of the team's most prominent and outspoken fans, earned a place on one of the buses.

The convoy arrived nearly two hours behind schedule near Toronto's City Hall, where the team was greeted on a stage by Trudeau and other dignitaries.

The shooting interrupted an otherwise peaceful, six-hour bash that only began to clear out in the late afternoon. Two people were taken to the hospital with non-life-threatening injuries, Toronto police said on Twitter. Two also were taken into custody and two firearms were recovered, police said. An investigation is ongoing.

The shots were fired near Nathan Phillips Square, the parade's final destination, during the victory speeches, causing hundreds of people to scatter for cover. However, it caused only a brief pause in the celebrations.

Canadians from coast to coast and all the way up to the Arctic have been celebrating since the Toronto Raptors captured their first National Basketball Association championship in a country that is traditionally known for its love of ice hockey.

The Raptors clinched the best-of-seven series in Oakland, California, on Thursday in six games by beating the defending champion Golden State Warriors, 114-110, giving rise to a nationwide love affair with basketball.

CANADIAN SPORTING HISTORY

The Raptors' victory is the first major professional sports championship for a Canada-based team since Major League Baseball's Toronto Blue Jays won the World Series in 1993. Toronto has been waiting for its beloved Maple Leafs to win the NHL championship since its last Stanley Cup victory in 1967.

"It's the culmination of playing for 24 years. We've been waiting a long time for this," said Raptors fan Chris Rogers.

Rogers, 34, who has rooted for the Raptors since they entered the league in 1995, was dressed in a jersey of Raptors guard Kyle Lowry. He had been waiting since morning to watch the parade.

Rogers said his workplace was fully supportive of him being out of the office as they believed the parade was important.

About 2 million fans stood by to celebrate and catch a glimpse of the winners, according to Maple Leaf Sports and Entertainment, which owns the Raptors.

Streets were closed off to accommodate the convoy, and three subway stations were also closed due to overcrowding on the street level. Enthusiastic fans festooned the streets of Toronto wearing Raptors red, purple, black and white.

A few fans climbed atop bus stops and the arches of Nathan Phillips Square, but were asked by police to come down. REUTERS

Earn a competitive salary with these environmental degrees

PAT KING

Finding a major that can help you make a difference in the world while actually providing some sort of job security once you graduate can be a difficult decision. It's a sobering realization to find out that your passions may not always pay the bills and that following the rule of supply and demand can be a sure bet toward financial stability. But, did you know that finding green jobs that aim to help the environment can offer attractive salaries to compensate for your meaningful work?

According to recent studies from the U.S. Bureau of Labor and Statistics, many popular environmental-protection positions either hovered around the national median salary of $38,640 in 2018 or well above that number. Jobs such as environmental science and protection technicians, environmental engineering technicians, conservation scientists, and soil and plant scientists all had salaries slightly over the national median. Environmental scientists, environmental engineers, and hydrologists all had higher salaries, with the highest-paid position, atmospheric and space scientists, earning an average salary of $94,110 a year.

Here are some schools in New York state that offer programs that can help you jump into careers in the environmental-protection industry.

SUNY College of Environmental Science and Forestry

All the way up in Syracuse, the SUNY College of Environmental Science and Forestry is a great option for getting into the industry at a lower tuition rate. The school offers many specific majors within the field that can help you stand apart from the pack with programs like Forest Resources Management, Landscape Architecture, Natural Resources Management, and even an online option to earn a Bachelor of Science in Sustainability Management.

Columbia University

While Columbia University is one of the more selective schools in the country, the university's Department of Earth and Environmental Sciences is one of the best programs to get you into the industry. The school's Fall 2019 syllabus will include such courses as "Earth's Environmental Systems: The Climate System," "Geochemistry for a Habitable Planet" and "Earth Resources and Sustainable Development" that can give you a wide scope and idea of what course of study you would like to take in order to make a difference with your degree.

Great educational events to check out this summer

ISTOCK

While summer is just heating up, many schools in the city will be holding some amazing events as their campuses clear out. Here are four events you should definitely check out.

Film Screening and Discussion: "Tato Laviera"
Centro, the Center for Puerto Rican Studies at CUNY Hunter, will be screening a new film on Tato Laviera titled "AmeRican Poet: Tato Laviera." The film is centered around the world-renowned poet and an important leader of the Nuyorican movement who passed away in 2013. The school will be showing the hour-long film and holding a discussion after. Thursday, June 20, 6-8 p.m., Centro Library Room 120, Silberman School of Social Work, 2180 Third Ave. (at 119th Street), free

NYU Art Exhibit: "Art After Stonewall, 1969-1989"
In honor of the 50th anniversary of the Stonewall riots and World Pride, the Grey Art Gallery at New York University will be hosting a comprehensive exhibit that features 200 works of art and related materials showing the profound effect of LGBTQ activism on the art world. Some of the prominent artists included in this exhibit are Vaginal Davis, Louise Fishman, Nan Goldin, Lyle Ashton Harris, Barbara Hammer, Holly Hughes, Greer Lankton, Robert Mapplethorpe, Catherine Opie, Joan Snyder and Andy Warhol. Opens Tuesday, June 25, Grey Art Gallery NYU, 100 Washington Sq. E, $5 suggested, free with NYU ID

"LGBTQ+ Catholic Activism: A Global Conversation" at Fordham University
This freewheeling conversation will be presented by the Fordham University Department of Theology and the Church of St. Francis Xavier in honor of the 50th anniversary of World Pride. The discussion will contain a panel of activists from around the world discussing the role of the LGBTQ+ community within the Church and how they can support fellow members around the globe. Wednesday, June 26, 7-8:30 p.m, 12th Floor Lounge, Corrigan Conference Center, Lowenstein Center, 113 W. 60th St., free

Jazzy Jazz Fest at Medgar Evers College
For nine consecutive Fridays this summer, Medgar Evers College in Crown Heights will be hosting their annual Dr. Mary Umolu Jazzy Jazz Fest, with this year's festival saluting legendary musician and The Equals frontman Eddy Grant. The festival is free and seating will be first come, first serve. July 5-Aug. 30, 7-10 p.m., Medgar Evers College, Academic Building 1, 1638 Bedford Ave., Brooklyn, free

Love is thicker than Venmo: Tips for couples on merging money

NerdWallet is a personal finance website.

As a millennial couple, you and your partner might not be planning to blend finances even if you've been together for a while.

Venmo is convenient, after all; the peer-to-peer money transfer app makes it easy to split costs like rent and utilities. Or perhaps you've each agreed to pay specific bills while keeping separate bank accounts.

In a Bank of America report released last year, 28 percent of couples between the ages of 23 and 37 surveyed said they kept their finances separate. That compared with 11 percent of couples ages 38-52 and 13% percent of couples 53-71.

There's no "right" way to manage finances, but there are benefits to mixing love and money. Here are tips from millennial couples who make it work.

First, set expectations

When Juli Olson and her boyfriend Travis McClelland, both 31, moved in together in Houston, their finances remained separate. Olson says she had a frugal upbringing, and mismatched expectations led to arguments. "He may think spending this much money on going out to eat is OK, but it didn't feel good for me," she says.

Eventually, the couple created a shared budget and goals. They compromised, spending on necessities as well as amusement. "He's introduced more fun into my life, for sure," she says.

When you're ready to talk with your partner, be honest about your attitudes toward money and agree on expectations. How much is reasonable to spend on things like eating out or groceries? Will you both save for a shared goal, like a vacation or car? Using the 50/30/20 budget gives you a good place to start. It divides spending into needs, wants and savings.

Joint accounts save time, hassle

A joint account is not just for convenience. Suppose you have separate accounts and you don't know or remember your partner's login information. If an emergency arises — your partner is hospitalized, for example — getting access to pay a bill takes effort, says Christine Centeno, 36, a certified financial planner at Simplicity Wealth Management near Richmond, Virginia.

"Even if you are married, you have to jump through a couple of hoops to get access to the funds," she says. If you don't have a joint account, she advises adding your partner as the beneficiary on your checking account.

Centeno, like many millennials, uses an online-only bank. She says it was easy to add her husband, Osmin, 37, to her account; the bank mailed her paperwork to sign.

Opening a joint account doesn't imply you have to close yours or give up control, Centeno says. To prevent fights, agree on an amount you each can spend on wants, no questions asked.

50-50 is not always fair

Splitting things equally may not be fair when one partner makes a lot more than the other. Consider a proportional split instead, Centeno says.

Calculate your total household income before expenses, and what share of the total comes from each income. Use that as a guideline — you pay 60 percent of expenses while your partner pays 40 percent, for example.

This also helps each person put money away for retirement or general savings, Centeno says. That's crucial if you split up or your partner dies.

Ashley Patrick, 34, and her husband Tyler, 35, took fewer than two years to pay off more than $47,000 in student loans, a tax bill and a car. The Charlotte, North Carolina, couple used a mix of budgeting, taking on extra work and selling things.

Ashley, who blogs at BudgetsMadeEasy.com, uses her husband's bigger paycheck — which arrives a week before hers — to pay larger bills, and her own paycheck to cover smaller bills the following week. "It's something after a couple years I figured out, after paying late fees and missing payments," she says. (Making payments on time is also a major factor that affects your credit score, as well as your partner's.)

Set up regular check-ins

Olson and McClelland have a weekly budget check-in, using an app called Honeyfi. While paying off debt, the Patricks tracked their progress every Friday on a spreadsheet.

Millennials aren't shy when it comes to talking about money: 97 percent of couples ages 18-34 said they discuss finances at least once a month, compared with the average 88 percent for all age groups, according to a 2018 survey of more than 1,700 U.S. adults by TD Bank.

"For a lot of couples, it's easy to fall into the trap of only talking about money when something stressful happens," says Sam Schultz, co-founder of Honeyfi. "Try to get into the habit of checking in about money even when stuff's not bad."

Your guide to National Martini Day

National Martini Day is this Wednesday, June 19.

MOLLY GIVEN
Molly.Given@metro.us

ALL IMAGES ISTOCK

This Wednesday marks a special day for all libation lovers. National Martini Day is officially June 19, and the Big Apple takes the spirited drink very seriously. Whether you're a gin or vodka fan, dry or dirty drinker or garnish snob, New York City has the perfect option for you.

AYZA Wine & Chocolate Bar
If you are a martini lover and have a sweet tooth, AYZA has the perfect martini option for National Martini Day. This popular hot spot offers a wide assortment of drinks, but many New Yorkers stop in for their chocolate martini selection. Choices include their peppermint chocolate, almond chocolate, strawberry chocolate, raspberry chocolate, espresso chocolate and classic. 11 W. 31st St., ayzanyc.com

The Belfry
This cute and irresistible spot boasts a fantastic cocktail menu, but their martinis are what truly takes the cake. The Belfry can whip up a classic or dirty gin or vodka martini to tickle your fancy. Or, if you're feeling adventurous, try their pickle martini for a briny twist. 222 E. 14th St., belfrynyc.com

Koi
Sleek and chic Koi knows how to shake up a great martini, and this popular spot also has a very unique selection to choose from. New Yorkers can stop in this Wednesday and indulge in Koi's signature Koi martini (featuring sparkling rosé, Cointreau, orange and pomegranate) or their Lychee martini (featuring vodka, lychee purée and cranberry) all day long on National Martini Day. 40 W. 40th St., koirestaurant.com

La Lanterna di Vittorio
Now, this spot knows how to make a martini. They do it so well that they have about 20 different variations of the tasty libation on their menu. Highlights include their limoncello martini, tequila martini, watermelon martini, espresso martini, orange creamsicle martini, passion fruit martini and many more. 129 Macdougal St., lalanternacaffe.com

Fort Defiance
This Brooklyn hot spot is the perfect destination for National Martini Day this Wednesday. New Yorkers can indulge in their delicious Breakfast Martini, which, according to their menu, was invented by London's most illustrious bartender, Salvatore Calabrese, and is made with gin, Cointreau, lemon and orange marmalade. 365 Van Brunt St., fortdefiancebrooklyn.com

Mason Premiere
Mason Premiere serves up martinis like no one else, and any libation lover would be happy with their Old King Cole martini, which is stirred tableside. The tasty drink features Old Raj gin, orange bitters and Castelvetrano olives. As a bonus, guests can add Osetra caviar to the tasty cocktail. 298 Bedford Ave., maisonpremiere.com

'Music is always developing' MARTIN GARRIX

The Dutch DJ talked with Metro about his song "Summer Days" and the climax Latin genres are currently living.

PATRICIA CARRANZA, MWN
letters@metro.us

For the third year in a row, Martin Garrix has been considered the best disc jockey, according to DJ Mag's Top 100 list. And 2019 could bring the 23-year-old another title thanks to his latest release, which could also become the best song of this summer. "Summer Days," featuring American rapper Macklemore and singer Patrick Stump of Fall Out Boy, has already managed to gather more than 17 million views on YouTube.

How did the collaboration with Patrick Stump and Macklemore come about?
It was the first time I worked with both of them. I wanted to work with them for a long time and I approached them because I felt I had the perfect song. It made me very happy that both were excited to collaborate.

Tell about the creative process of "Summer Days."
I sent the idea to Macklemore and Patrick, [they] both recorded their verses and gave their own touch. In fact, we finished the song shortly after. It was a quick process.

At your age you are one of the most important DJs in the world. How does that feel?
Very grateful. Everything has happened quite fast for me, but I have worked very hard to achieve this.

You have collaborated with great musicians such as Dua Lipa and Khalid, among others. Was that the key to reach more people?
Of course, music has a greater scope when you collaborate with other artists. And it also helps them reach other audiences. I love collaborating because we learn from each other by creating something new together.

Do you think that electronic music is going through good times?
Music is always developing and changing and there are different trends. It is currently happening with Latin music. As for electronic music, I think it still works very well and has developed a lot around the world.

Would you like to collaborate with someone doing Latin music?
I like all kinds of music and I think that Latin music is great. At the moment I am not working with anyone on that, but I am open to any proposal.

What do you enjoy most when you are on stage?
Making people happy. When people dance, they are always happy and forget everything else for that moment.

What does a DJ need to be successful around the world?
Work hard and always be nice to everyone!

Walter Parkes and Laurie MacDonald on their long journey to make 'Men in Black: International'

"Men in Black" producers Walter Parkes and Laurie MacDonald were in no rush to make a fourth installment to the franchise.

GREGORY WAKEMAN
Gregory.Wakeman@metro.us

Everyone involved in the previous films, which starred Will Smith and grossed a combined total of $1.65 billion, felt the 2012 sci-fi comedy had brought the story to an end and had moved on. But Parkes and MacDonald had a germ of an idea for a new "Men in Black" film that had always intrigued them.

"We had this basic idea of a young girl who witnesses or has an experience with an alien and who spends the rest of her youth trying to find [the] 'men in black,' talks her way in, is paired with the wrong partner and realizes that there's more to the universe than science," Parkes recently told Metro over the phone.

However, the pair weren't able to get the script right. Which is when Phil Lord and Chris Miller approached the duo about crossing "Men in Black" with "21 Jump Street." The producers fully supported this plan, as they thought it "sounded fun." Once again, though, this crossover succumbed due to script problems.

"In retrospect, I don't think it was an accident," explains Parkes. "I think the two franchises are in some ways opposite. 'Men in Black' is about playing extraordinary situations in a sort of comically deadpan style, whereas 'Jump Street' is going after more mainstream-genre moments and then going way over the top with them."

With that version dead, MacDonald and Parkes returned to their original plan, and were relieved when Art Marcum and Matt Holloway delivered a script that they adored. But since this was a reboot, the duo were well aware that finding an actor to step into Will Smith's shoes was going to be incredibly difficult.

"It was so tough to find our H," admits MacDonald. "Because there are so few actors who can play the tough action, who have the physical prowess, a pure charisma and great comic instinct. There's not a long list."

Which is why it was such a relief when Chris Hemsworth, who was the first actor they approached for the role, immediately signed up. Casting Agent M was all set up to be just as difficult, too, but it became a lot easier when Parkes and MacDonald saw Tessa Thompson acting opposite Hemsworth in "Thor: Ragnarok" and were enchanted by their chemistry. Although, MacDonald is the first to admit they were a little concerned that pairing the two together again so quickly after "Ragnarok" might look a tad "unimaginative."

Thompson and Hemsworth aren't the only huge changes that "International" makes to the "Men in Black" franchise. As its title makes clear, the setting for the film has moved away from New York, and while Hemsworth and Thompson's agents are based in London, France, Italy and Morocco feature prominently, too.

"The idea of opening this up internationally has always in the back of our minds," says Parkes. "But it was quite liberating creatively, and I do think it also made the studio confident enough to green-light the movie. Because they felt it would hopefully appeal to this rapidly expanding global market."

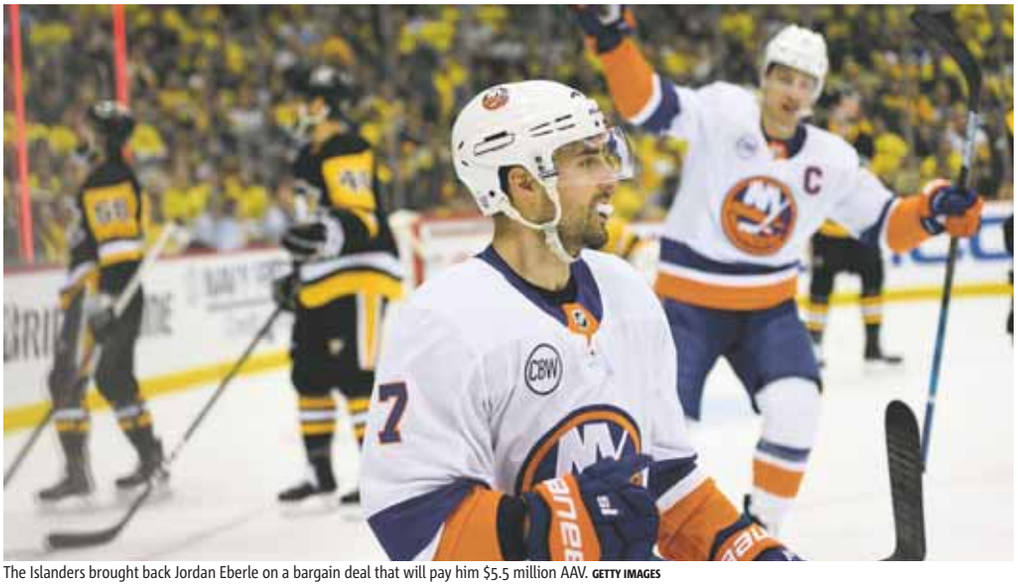
After Jordan Eberle signing, Islanders' plans getting clearer

With cap space slowly dwindling, the Islanders have more work to do ahead of free agency.

JOE PANTORNO
joseph.pantorno@metro.us



The Islanders brought back Jordan Eberle on a bargain deal that will pay him $5.5 million AAV. GETTY IMAGES

For the first time in years, the New York Islanders and their fans aren't looking at the NHL Draft (on Friday) as the main chance of acquiring talent to build a contender upon.

Instead, all eyes have shifted 10 days ahead to July 1. That's when the start of free agency offers the chance of developing the Islanders from a nice little playoff team to a Stanley Cup threat.

While president of hockey operations and general manager Lou Lamoriello is known for being tight-lipped and cryptic on the market, his recent actions are providing some clarity as to what the Islanders may do in the next few weeks.

A dormant offseason that had only featured the extension of Brock Nelson sprang to life on Friday when winger Jordan Eberle re-signed with the Islanders, inking a five-year, $27.5 million deal.

It was a somewhat unexpected move considering many believed Eberle would walk in free agency, whether that was because he wanted to play elsewhere or because the Islanders wanted to focus their approximate $40 million in cap space elsewhere. After all, the Islanders still have numerous pending unrestricted free agents to address, including captain Anders Lee and goaltender Robin Lehner.

But Eberle's decision to take a cheaper deal to stay with the Islanders suggests that the culture is continuing to change for an organization that has had tremendous difficulty over the last few decades acquiring or keeping top-tier talent.

Following Eberle's signing, the Islanders are left with approximately $22 million in cap space for the remainder of the offseason. Using deductive reasoning, it seems clear what the Islanders' plans are moving forward.

Though that can never be confirmed when dealing with Lamoriello.

Still, the signing of Lee and Lehner will be paramount this week to ensure the foundation of the team remains intact.

Seeing Lee walk would mean the Islanders losing a captain for a second straight year, which would provide a sizable blow. The problem is that Lee is looking for a seven- to eight-year deal while the Islanders are looking at five or six years, per The Athletic's Arthur Staple.

The 28-year-old is projected to receive between $6.5 million and $7 million regardless of term.

Lehner will also be looking for a noticeable payday after the Islanders took a chance on him last summer with a $1.5 million deal. It turned out to be the largest steal in the league as the netminder is up for the Vezina Trophy after posting a career year.

Signing both players would leave the Islanders with enough space for one big-time free agent, whether that comes in the form of center Matt Duchene or winger Artemi Panarin.

Panarin has also been heavily linked to the crosstown-rival Rangers while Duchene has seemingly been on the Islanders' radar for the past two years.

While either signing would provide the Islanders with a much-needed boost to a stagnant offense and miserable power play, Lamoriello is expected to put some of his defense on the market to add more scoring depth.

Nick Leddy and Thomas Hickey are reportedly on the market and defensive-needy teams like the Chicago Blackhawks and Florida Panthers could become ideal trade partners.

The Blackhawks could offer Brandon Saad as a middle-line winger capable of scoring 20-plus goals. Florida, on the other hand, has been rumored to trade Mike Hoffman since the February deadline.

Hoffman put up a career-best 36 goals in his first year with the Panthers, including 18 power-play tallies.

The Yankees traded for Edwin Encarnacion on Saturday night. GETTY IMAGES

Stanton, Judge set to join Encarnacion in Bronx shortly

The Yankees are getting healthy after pulling off a big trade.

JOE PANTORNO
joseph.pantorno@metro.us

Major League Baseball should take warning: The Yankees are almost back to full health.

With that, they look poised to beat the world at this new, homer-happy plan that has taken the majors offer since the very first allegations of the league juicing its baseballs.

Instead of going out and nabbing starting pitching help, general manager Brian Cashman raided the selling Seattle Mariners for the American League home run leader in Edwin Encarnacion.

The price? A minor-league pitching prospect and $8.5 million to $10.5 million for a portion of Encarnacion's remaining contract.

The 36-year-old entered Monday night leading the American League with 21 home runs, just one round-tripper ahead of Yankees catcher Gary Sanchez — who rediscovered his swing after a miserable 2018.

Encarnacion's acquisition also sent promising outfielder Clint Frazier back down to triple-A despite batting .283 with 11 home runs in just 53 games; a necessary move, however, for a team that has gone all-in on power.

It's only going to get more menacing for the rest of baseball.

Giancarlo Stanton is set to return to the Yankees tonight after missing 67 games with a calf injury. Aaron Judge, who is coming back from a left oblique strain, isn't too far behind.

Suddenly the Yankees offense is returning toward full strength — having already got Didi Gregorius back — as the lineup is set to bludgeon teams to death.

Stanton and Judge are perennial 40-plus-home-run threats when healthy.

Sanchez is currently hitting one home run per every 9.6 at-bats, an American League best.

Luke Voit is proving that 2018 was no flash in the pan with 17 home runs, making the idea of a competition between him and Greg Bird for the starting first base job laughable.

Encarnacion has hit 30 or more home runs in each of the last seven seasons, averaging 38 per season during that stretch.

Gleyber Torres, who could very well be batting ninth, has 15 home runs this season.

Then there's DJ LeMahieu, who ranks fourth in the American League with a .312 batting average, starting at second base.

Gio Urshela and his .306 batting average is about to become the team's main bat off the bench.

It's an unstoppable onslaught of offensive prowess on tap for the Yankees and while it's still important, all the pressure won't be on Cashman to go out and find a top-tier starting pitcher this year, at least.

Weston McKennie (8) and Christian Pulisic (10) headline the young talent featured on the United States. GETTY IMAGES

US men kick off Gold Cup tonight

The USMNT has plenty to prove at this year's tournament.

JOE PANTORNO
joseph.pantorno@metro.us

While the women's team dominates at the 2019 Women's World Cup, the United States men's national soccer team kicks off its Gold Cup campaign tonight against Guyana (10:30 p.m. ET, FS1).

It's the first real opportunity for the men's squad to prove that they are still a force on the international stage after missing the 2018 World Cup.

The U.S. hadn't missed the World Cup since 1986, prompting sweeping changes throughout the program following a horrific qualifying campaign — most notably the dismissal of manager Jurgen Klinsmann.

In his place has stepped Gregg Berhalter, who made his name managing the MLS' Columbus Crew. He's attempted to inject new life into the program, which has failed to make any real noise on the international stage.

While ruling CONCACAF (the governing body of North American soccer), alongside Mexico, the U.S. has done little on the world stage. They've made the Round of 16 just three times since the 1934 World Cup.

At the Gold Cup, Berhalter has brought a mix of familiar faces and new, developing stars into the fold as the United States look to get back on track.

Here is what you need to know about the U.S. at the Gold Cup:

WHAT IS THE GOLD CUP?

The Gold Cup is a tournament held by CONCACAF once every two years to decide the champion of teams from North and Central America, along with the Carribean.

This is the first time that 16 teams are in the finals, compared to 12 in the previous 14 installments of the competition. Four groups of four teams play each other once during the group stage. The top two teams from each group move on to the quarterfinals in a knockout stage that ends with the championship on July 7 in Chicago.

WHO ARE THE FAVORITES?

As always, the United States and Mexico are the favorites to take the Gold Cup crown.

The U.S. has won the tournament six times and are the defending champions, having defeated Jamaica in the 2017 final.

Mexico has won seven Gold Cups and will be keen on showing its loss to the Jamaicans in the semifinals two years ago was just a fluke. After all, they actually made the 2018 World Cup but could not shake the Round-of-16 jinx that saw them eliminated in the first knockout stage for the seventh consecutive time.

WHAT DO THE GROUPS LOOK LIKE?

GROUP A
Mexico
Canada
Martinique
Cuba

GROUP B
Costa Rica
Haiti
Bermuda
Nicaragua

GROUP C
Curacao
El Salvador
Honduras
Jamaica

GROUP D
Guyana
Panama
Trinidad & Tobago
USA

WHO TO WATCH ON USA

All eyes will be on Hershey, Pennsylvania, native Christian Pulisic, the American midfielder who recently joined Premier League powerhouse Chelsea.

Pulisic will be making his first appearance at a major tournament for the Americans, where he'll be joined by other promising talents like Schalke's Weston McKinnie and former New Zealand product Tyler Boyd.

Jozy Altidore also returns to the side, the American striker making his first appearance in a U.S. kit since the team's elimination from World Cup qualifying in a loss to Trinidad & Tobago two years ago.
